

Retired Educators Wanted

for

The UFT NYC Community Learning Schools Initiative TutorHUB
(Tutor Help in Understanding Basics) Program

The UFT is inviting you to volunteer for the TutorHub program. The program was created as a resource for our Community Learning Schools (CLS). The UFT launched the CLS initiative in 2012 to facilitate partnerships between schools, community leaders, non-profits and local businesses to bring vital services to public school.

The initiative brings social/emotional and academic services to meet needs identified by the participating schools. The UFT's TutorHub program utilizes the expertise and experience of retired educators to provide academic support services in the development of basic skills. The program involves one-on-one tutoring for students the school identifies as benefiting from one-on-one support.

The program is currently running in three of our Community Learning Schools and we are looking to expand the number of sites and the number of tutors. Volunteer tutors are reporting a great deal of satisfaction with the program and feel they are making a difference for the students.

If you are interested in volunteering or want to learn more about the program, email Theresa London Cooper at tlcooper@uft.org.